Examiner's Detailed Office Action

1. This Office is responsive to application 10/560,666, filed December 12, 2005.
2. Claims 1-102 have been examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

3. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

4. Claims 1-20, 21-30, 31-32, and 97-102 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter: non-functional descriptive material and mathematical abstraction. Claims 1-20, 21-30, 31-32, and 97-102 recite a “neural network comprising ... elemental ... and ... structural neurons ... able to be associated via active connections” In each case, the claims recite a computer related manufacture having no data structure and no descriptive language that define any structural and functional interrelationships between the data structure and other claimed aspects of the invention which permit the data structure’s functionality to be realized. Claims 1-20, 21-30, 31-32, and 97-102 are therefore a non-functional descriptive listing of parts of a mathematical abstraction and are therefore non-statutory under 35 U.S.C. 101. Examiner notes that although claim 102 recites a number of useful applications of neural networks, no useful, concrete, or tangible result in any area of application is recited.

5. Claims 50-58 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter: non-functional descriptive material and mathematical abstraction.

Claims 50-58 recite a “neuronal assembly ... comprising an initiating neuron, an associated neuron, and an associating neuron operatively connected to the initiating neuron and the associated neuron”. Claims 50-58 are therefore a non-functional descriptive listing of parts of a mathematical abstraction and are non-statutory under 35 U.S.C. 101 for the same reasons given for claims 1-20, 21-30, 31-32, and 97-102.

6. Claims 33-35, 36-38, 39, and 40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter: non-function descriptive material. Claims 33 recites a “neural network comprising ... neurons being represented by a unique addressable node in an array ...”. Claims 36 recites a “neural network comprising a plurality of nodes in an array, each node comprising at least one pointer, each pointer being a data element of the node; each data element representing a unique address of a specific node ...”. Claim 39 recites a “neural network comprising a plurality of neurons, each neuron being stored as a unique node of an addressable array ...”. Claim 40 recites a “neural network comprising a plurality of neurons represented by an array having pointers for providing expression ...”. In each case, the claims recite a computer related manufacture having data structures which meet the IEEE definition of data structure. However, in no claim are the data structures disclosed as being combined with a non-paper medium, which is a tangible physical object. Therefore, claims 33-35, 36-38, 39, and 40 provide a non-functional descriptive listing of parts of a mathematical abstraction to be implemented in a computer related fashion. Further, no physical transformation is recited by the claims and no result of the combining of parts is ever recited. The claims therefore recite no useful, concrete, or tangible result. Claims 33-35, 36-38, 39, and 40 are clearly non-statutory under 35 U.S.C. 101.

7. Claims 59-96 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter: mathematical abstraction and algorithm. Claim 59 recites "method for creating an association of neurons in a neural network". Claim 59 recites a process and clearly includes the 101 judicial exceptions of mathematical abstraction and algorithm. Claim 59 recites no physical transformation and no real-world result of activating and firing the different types of neurons in the network is ever recited. The claim, therefore recites no useful, concrete, and tangible result. Claims 59-96 are therefore non-statutory under 35 U.S.C. 101.

Applicant should note that no prior art has been applied to the claims. No opinion is expressed with regards to the patentability of the claims over any art in this office action, since applicant's response to the rejection under 35 USC 101 should impact the scope and applicability of any art to the claims.
